III. SUMMARY

The first company to build in Genesee Valley Agri Business (GVAB) Park will be Alpina Foods from South America. Alpina is an international dairy processing company headquartered in Bogota, Colombia that produces consumer dairy products. Alpina was looking to expand their business to the United States to gain greater market access and therefore conducted a national study to identify and optimize a location for a new facility to process and distribute products for consumption. The results of the study found the North East to be the ideal location for the company’s first US manufacturing facility. The company further narrowed down their search to two locations, Lancaster County, PA and Genesee County, NY. In the end, Genesee County's optimal location and incentives package was victorious. The company will build a 28,000 sq. ft. yogurt manufacturing facility on 10 acres of land in the GVAB Park and employ 50 persons. GCEDC is looking to assist the company with sales tax exemption valued at $260,000 for construction material, furniture, fixtures and non-manufacturing equipment, a mortgage tax exemption value at $48,750 and a property abatement valued at $458,346. We were aggressive with property tax abatement compared to our traditional PILOT offerings, as we were competing against another state. In addition to GCEDC support of the project, New York State Office of Community Renewal is supporting the project with up to $750k grant/loan program along with New York State Empire State Development Excelsior Program for wage tax credits valued at $288k. Also, the utility companies have incentives valued at $250k from National Grid and $100k from National Fuel Gas.
